Proposed Library

Merrimack College

Architects: Shepley Bulfinch Richardson and Abbott

Merrimack College intends to continue growing in every way that has academic significance. A college must do many things to care for increasing enrollments and the more important must receive first consideration. Merrimack College places top priority on a new library.

The new library is designed to be the dominating academic center of the campus. It will provide for over 250,000 books, and individual study carrels will make them readily accessible to the students. Air-conditioning will keep it comfortable throughout the year and carpeting will keep noises at a minimum. When completed, the new library will cost almost two million dollars.

An ever increasing proportion of our graduates continue their studies on the graduate level. The new library should prove to be another asset, enhancing educational growth at Merrimack College.

Time is a sort of a river...

"Time is a sort of river of passing events, and strong is its currents; no sooner is a thing brought to sight than it is swept by and another takes its place, and this too will be swept away."

Marcus Aurelius

are those whose constant influence directs the tides themselves. As we are swept within their influence and carried beyond it in the profluence of life, these men and women remain fixed by their responsibility to teach, to guide, to stimulate . . . to temper the torrent with smoothness and direction . . . to channel knowledge into understanding, understanding into wisdom. It is through the stream of communication, the dynamics of mind meeting mind that the experience of one surges into another; it is through the onward rush of knowledge that the wisdom of one impels another's understanding. As each lends resources to a special aspect of the current, all are united in the direction of knowledge . . . toward a truth which, despite the force of time, is absolute, serving its purpose in each of life's estuaries. Thus, we who learn are first indebted to these who teach, not only for the charted course of truth, but for the capacity which truth implies . . . for the fortitude to meet, as it comes, every bend of the river.

FACULTY

As President of Merrimack College, the Very Reverend Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., Ph.D., has distinguished himself greatly in the administration and in the designing of the future of the college. Acting as an inspiration to students and faculty alike, his able policies have fostered academic growth at Merrimack College to the attainment of heretofore unknown heights. This guidance has resulted in an educational landmark which is a monument to this man. A vital, growing symbol of his achievements, the entire college lives in gratitude to his unselfish devotion.

PRESIDENT

As Vice-President and Dean of the College, the Reverend John Aherne, O.S.A., exercises firm and confident control over the academic operations of the College. It is through his personal understanding of the problems of both the faculty and students that Father Aherne is able to satisfy the requirements of his office. For the admirable work that he has been doing, the gratitude of the students is extended to him.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

The success of any educational institution ultimately depends upon the decisions of its administrators. The physical and academic growth of Merrimack College is, to a great extent, attributable to the efforts of the Board of Trustees. The duties of this board are many and difficult. For the perseverance and prudence they have displayed in supervising the administrative policies of Merrimack College, we extend to them our gratitude.

PRIOR

As Prior of the Monastery of Our Lady of Good Counsel at Merrimack College, Very Rev. John M. Driscoll, O.S.A. is the religious superior of Merrimack's Augustinians, and the spiritual father of the College Community as well. Father Driscoll's spirit of genuine interest is sincerely appreciated by both the priests and students of Merrimack.

Rev. William Monahan, O.S.A. is Sub-Prior of the Monastary at Merrimack. He assists the Prior in fulfilling this responsible office, and his wise policies are reflected in the excellent example set for us by the Augustinian Fathers at Austin Hall.

SUB-PRIOR

Richard Cardinal Cushing has earned worldwide respect as an outstanding leader of the Church. He has given a deeper appreciation of charity and perseverance to all. Aware of a need to advance Catholic college education in America, he stands as the motivating force which brought Merrimack College into existence. Through his boundless effort and generosity, and under his continuing guidance, this institution has become a recognized leader in American college education.

The Very Reverend James a Donellon, O.S.A., A.B., M.S., Ph.D., is Prior Provincial of the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova. an office to which he was elected by qualified members of the Province. His numerous duties for which he is directly responsible to the Vatican include maintaining the parishes and seminaries in the Eastern Province. Father Donellon serves Merrimack College by presiding as Chairman of its Board of Trustees, an especially difficult task in the formative years of our institution.

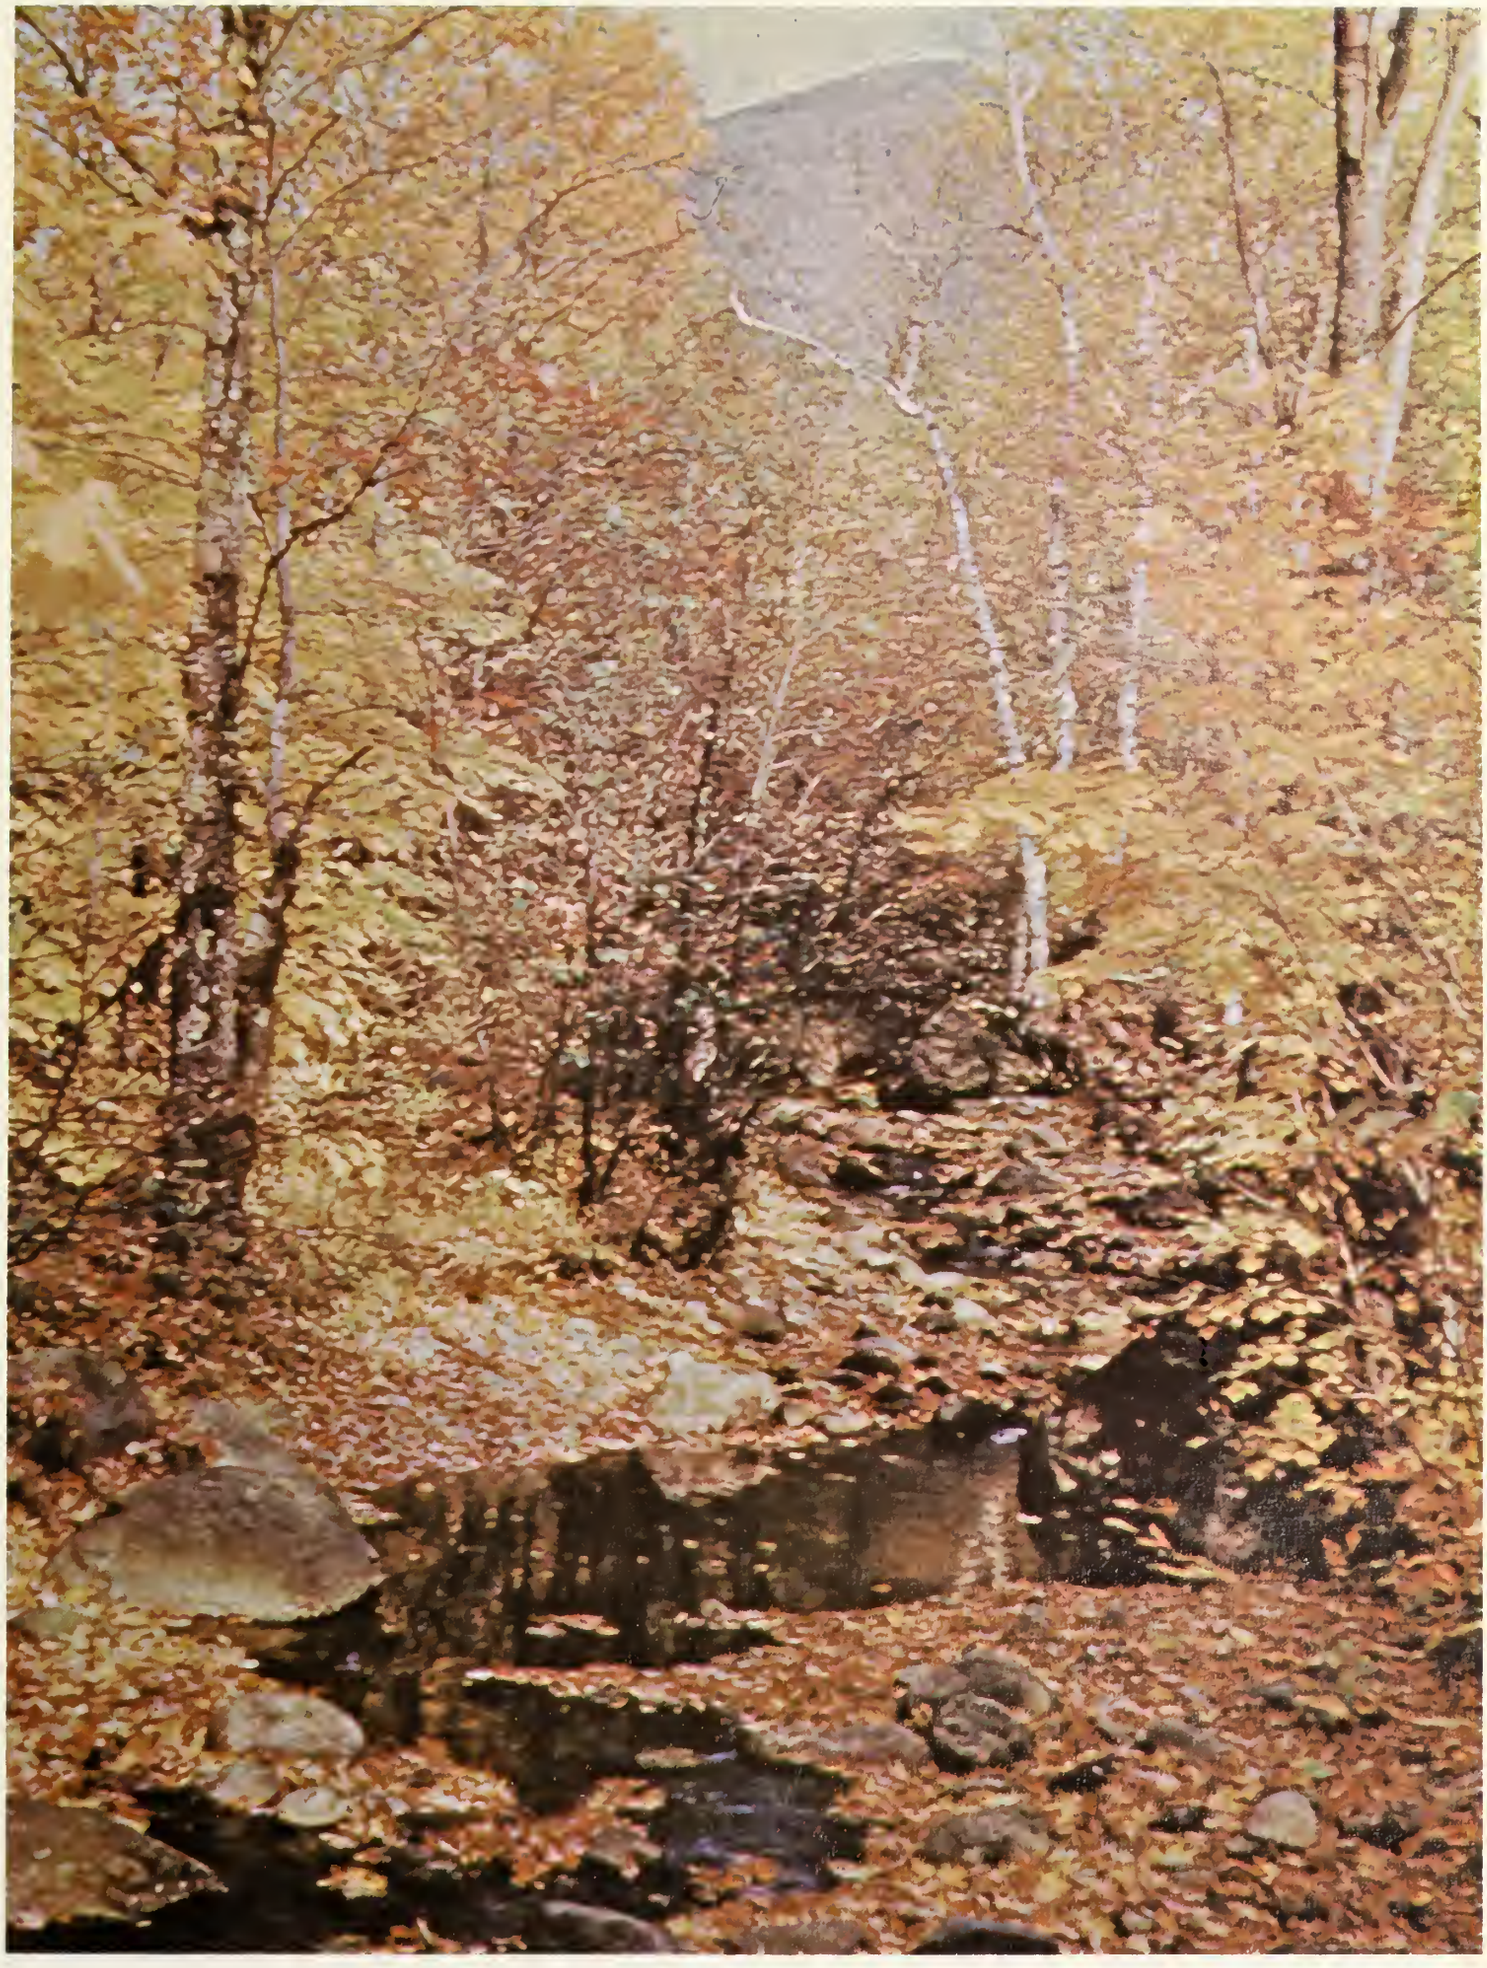
Flowing together to produce . . .

one wave . . . a confluence of heart and mind, action born of thought and thought born of action. The tributaries of life and time meet and we comprise a portion of each tributary. Blending, combining into one vast current, our parts in the whole are as varied as ourselves. The parts we play are the undercurrent of our days . . . days spent in the ebullience of friendship . . . in the excitement of shared experience brought on by every phase of social life. A force works on us . . . a drift toward aspirations . . . toward lasting fulfillment.

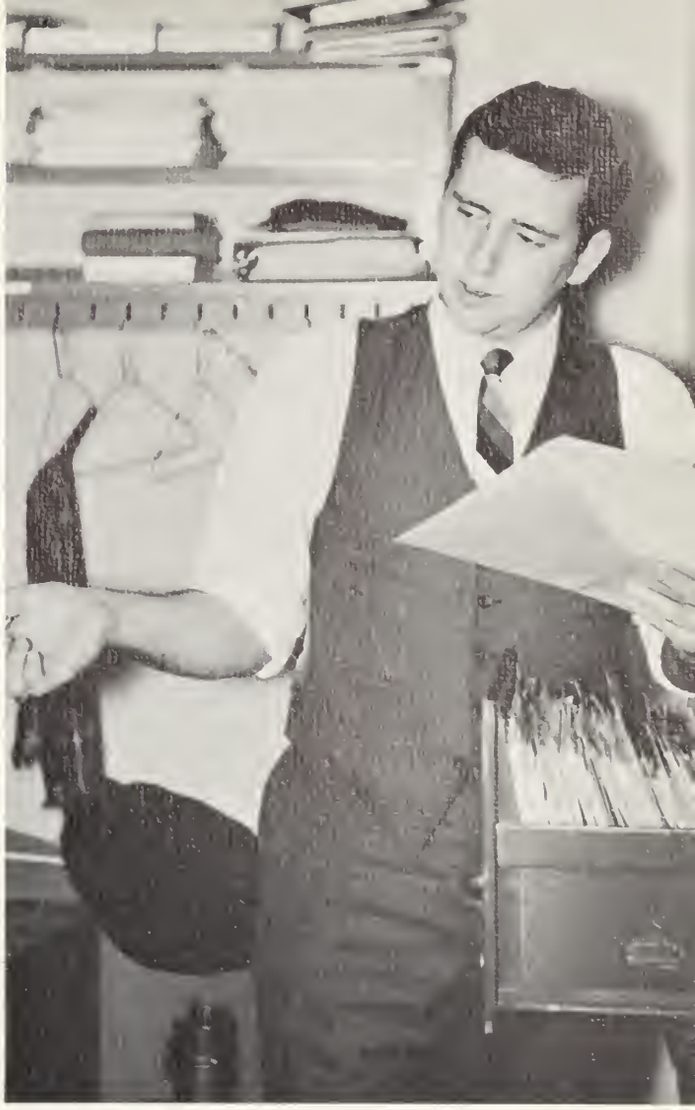
CAMPUS LIFE



These are the times that try men's souls

Cut system a la Merrimack: 8:30 clean-cut with Gillette, 9:30 over-cut with the Dean of Men, 10:30 close-cut in the mailroom with thrifty students — $

If they don't hurry and take this picture, we'll all lose our table in the Canteen.



Perhaps a little bit off the subject, but unfortunately, in this envelope we have our annual financial report.

Let's see — the first one gets one ticket and the second one gets two.

Live, Love, Learn, Laugh . . . in class?

Five minutes is long enough to wait for anybody!

Don't look now, but Big Brother is watching you.

Joe, we know the Yearbook's trying to cut expenses, but you can turn on the light.

WHY GRIND . . .

Exotic foods, sweet music, intimate atmosphere . . . and then the camera.

My goodness, we just cut his class, and here he comes now.

And now that we're comfortable, we'll have three hours of uninterrupted, diligent study.

Take a break and worry

"Elope? Well . . . ah . . . I ah . . . the draft hasn't worried me that much lately."

First period, economics, second period, physics, and third period, advanced whist and bridge.

"What about Friday night?" . . . "Well, I'll try, maybe I can fit you in!"

Orientation time! College men are nothing without a frilly shower cap. Books. and more books—they make life so FULL. Every Freshman class has one clown . . . or two . . . or three. Beanies make me feel unusual —and I holler WHY? When will this trial and mostly error be over? The Orientation Dance—the end at last—but it was wonderful.

Studies cease . . .

"Tell me more, I love it."

Congolese Cultural Exchange

The way I understand it—they said bring a blanket, not a date.

the pulse quickens

Hurry up and shove off, here comes the owner!

Quick! Sweep it under the rug . . . room check is in five minutes.

And '65 was the year of the Monkey . . . It all began with a dance . . .

Behold the mighty men of Merrimack, in their natural attire, natural habitat and natural state of mind.

Burdened with Leisure

Fun and a Saturday knight both get together on a Saturday night.

Saturday Knight and Sunday Mourning

To Joe, Protector of the disabled, the late and the confused.

Ronnie. if you don't stop laughing you'll end up as a decoration on our Christmas tree.

"Down at the end of lonely street . . ."

For the first time in your life feel really clean.

Prayer helps to lighten our work throughout the year. The students that pray together stay together.

An action packed shot from The Great Escape.

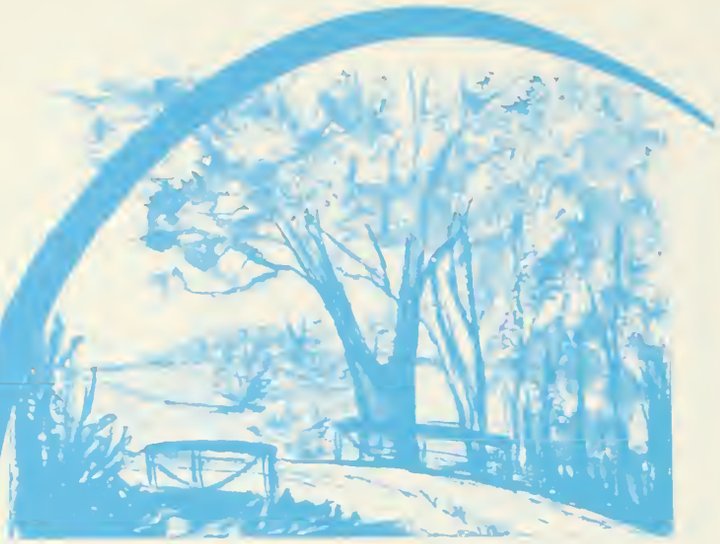
This isn't the N.B.C. Game of the Week —but it is Sunday and it is football.

Well, the hitch-hiking wasn't too good, coming back this weekend.

A man can't find a quiet place to study in the dorm anymore.

TOMORROW . . .

WHY TOMORROW . . .



Caught up in the currents of . . .

personal goals and group accomplishments, we exist in a torrent of clubs and publications, student government and fraternities. Amidst the impressions and sensations, we try to cling to the present . . . but the current is strong, pulling us onward . . . our achievements unimportant when seen against the backdrop of eternity . . . this pride of ours holds itself up to scorn, and laughing, rejoices in the fact of its own humanity . . . its humanity . . . without which the words of poets, the deeds of heroes and the visions of scientists would never have come to be.

ACTIVITIES

Willingness and cooperation are among the outstanding characteristics of the Yearbook Staff. It is through their enthusiasm that the book has become a reality and a truly fitting tribute by them to their alma mater. Meeting deadlines, producing clever captions and literary passages are among the well-performed tasks of the staff.

MERRIMACKAN

What is a Yearbook? Is it an expression of the times, a summary of the years' events, or a tribute to the school? It is all of these things and many more. It is the pulse of school spirit, the blood of pride, and the bones of tradition. A good book will depict Merrimack as it is, and not as we will it to be. The success of this book can best be gauged by you the student. If ten years from now, you pick up this book, and find it rich in vivid memories, then we will have succeeded in our goal. Truly, the Merrimackan is a unique endeavor, one with the possibility of a lasting reward. We thank all who have contributed to its production.

That's close. Fred Egan, sports editor, can't figure why he makes so many typing errors.

Mike Kavanagh and Joe Dolan confer on a top secret plan as Dick Noonan looks over the figures. As per usual, all systems checked out in good order.

These editors of the Merrimackan have the task of directing all the diverse activities that go into the making of the Yearbook. Their valuable contributions of time and talent are chiefly responsible for the success of this edition.

Jack Gaudreau assumes his normal working position as the Warrior staff frantically attempts to meet its weekly deadline.

Mary Anne Klimas, alias "Flash," appears to be hard at work; she is really posing for this picture.

It is chiefly through the dedication of these people that the Warrior has reached its present height of excellence.

The Warrior, Merrimack's official newspaper, joined the ranks of the weeklies in September, 1962. This was an important step necessary to coincide with the growth of the college and increases in advertising and alumni circulation. The Warrior staff is comprised of students from every class. They work in various departments, such as news, features, sports, advertising, circulation. copy reading, and typing. Students interested in journalism are, therefore. presented with the challenge of actual newspaper experience.

WARRIOR

Week after week, the members of the Warrior staff relinquish their time to present to the students of Merrimack College a newspaper with life, food for thought, discussion and sometimes action. The staff is active, controversial, and truly and sincerely interested in the college community. Having accepted the challenge, they work as a team, pulling together to produce the best means of communication possible. No one or two persons could have done this alone. It took more than forty people, people who have too often been behind the scenes. These are the trend setters, the students who have already had their chance to help mold the minds of their fellow students, the editors of the Warrior.

Serving as an outlet and encouragement for the more literary minded students, the Carillon is one of the oldest established groups on campus. This year's edition, edited by Jim D'Entremont with the assistance of moderator Mrs. Ground, is worthy of the attention of every student.

With the advice of Les LaFreniere, last year's editor, Carillon editor James D'Entremont examines manuscripts solicited for the first of two issues to be published this year.

CARILLON

The Carillon is the literary magazine of Merrimack College. As such, it constitutes a major outlet for creative expression, drawing prose and poetry from students in all classes and departmental divisions. The magazine's staff works in close affiliation with Mrs. Ground, its moderator, to insure a sound editorial policy which strives for excellence in every phase of literary endeavor, for representation of all points of view. It is this policy which has lifted the Carillon to the position of esteem it now holds.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

Interfraternity Council of Merrimack College is comprised of representatives of all the fraternities on campus. Its main function is to coordinate the various activities, curricular and extracurricular, in which the fraternities are involved.

PENMAN CLUB

Facility in self-expression is not developed spontaneously; talent must be carefully guided and directed to achieve its perfection. The Penman Club offers students the opportunity to express themselves in poetry and prose.

Under the skillful direction of Dr. Leone, the Benzene Ring is an expression of the avid interest and scientific mindedness of chemistry majors. Through chemical experimentation, stimulating lectures and advanced study, members add to their scientific background. "Ring" members make their presence felt by the rest of the student body through reports and activities planned for the non-scientific seekers of knowledge.

BENZENE RING

Within the sinking halls of Sullivan are to be found many creeping, crawling beings which comprise the world of Biology. This is the sole domain of the Biology majors who have banded together to form the Caducean Club. Through visiting lecturers and occult field trips, they seek to expand their "logus" of "Bio." Their interests are universal, their enthusiasm makes them one of the outstanding clubs on campus.

CADUCEAN CLUB

CHEERLEADERS

With a burst of enthusiasm, the Warrior Cheerleaders have provided amazing spirit for our team and school. Hard work and many hours of practice went into the perfection of their precision routines. The Cheerleaders have provided the spirit and zeal necessary to rally both students and players alike. This has accounted in no small way for our victories.

DORM COUNCIL

Chiefly concerned with the interests of women residents, the Dormitory Council functions as an active intermediary between the administration and Monican Centre.

The members of the Council work in conjunction with the Dean of Women to ameliorate any difficulties which may arise and also to sponsor various cultural and social activities for members of the dorm.

CHAPLAINS EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The Executive Board of the Chaplain's office was initiated to administer as a unifying and communicating power of diverse Catholic organizations on the Merrimack campus. Each group represented by the board attempts to develop the common goal of Christian action in its own particular way. The board's newspaper URGITE serves to stimulate motivation, and also act as a line of communication from organizations to the student body.

LAY APOSTOLATE

The Merrimack Chapter of the Lay Apostolate is an organization under the auspices of the Conference of Inter-American Student Projects. Its purpose is to practice Christian ideals and action. Last summer nine Merrimack students were sent to Tamiahua, Veracruz, Mexico, on a Christian summer peace corps plan. This year the group has expanded and is presently undergoing an orientation program which will enable them to build upon the foundations previously set in Tamiahua.

BUSINESS CLUB

By providing members with a professional business orientation, the Business Club supplements classroom discussions with guest lecturers, field trips, and banquets. It is hoped that these activities will enhance the growing prestige of Merrimack College and its alumni in the business, professional, and educational world. An active group of officers and committee members have contributed greatly to this effort in 1964-1965.

SECRETARIAL SCIENCE CLUB

All students in the secretarial department, School of Business Administration, are members of the Secretarial Science Club. Its objectives are fourfold: to foster the spiritual, social, cultural, and academic interests of its members. Activities which carry out these aims, such as field trips and speakers, are planned throughout the year. The outstanding feature of the organization is the annual fashion show. The entire proceeds are always donated to the school building fund.

AEGIDIANS

The Aegidians is the education club of Merrimack College and is composed of those members of the student body who are interested in entering the teaching profession. Prominent speakers in the field of education as well as recent graduates of the educational department keep the Aegidians informed of the latest requirements, techniques, and problems of their chosen field. Through the club's efforts, future teachers enter their vocation with more confidence and preparation.

ACCOUNTING CLUB

The chief function of the Accounting Club is the maintenance of a close unity among the students, faculty and graduate accountants practicing in the area. This unity augments and amplifies the interest of members by providing a lively contact with the business world. Traditionally, the club closes its yearly activities with a banquet where speakers include members of the faculty and distinguished business men.

EPSILON DELTA SOCIETY

For those inclined toward math. the Epsilon Delta Society provides an opportunity. Students may engage themselves in discussions, visit prospective employers or just inquire into areas of math not discussed in class. The more adventuresome will try their hand at writing articles for the "Limit," the Society's publication. The Society fosters the ability of students to converse intelligibly about mathematical topics.

ENGINEERING INSTITUTE

The Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. Inc.. is the largest professional engineering society in the world. It was founded in 1884.

Student branches of the I.E.E.E. are established in more than 200 approved colleges. universities. and technical institutes and schools throughout the world. The activities of a student branch of the I.E.E.E. provide students with an unusual opportunity to associate educationally and socially with fellow engineering students.

Tea and coffee served at 4:30. To the members of the Physics Society, this truly typifies the relaxed atmosphere under which the society meets. Group discussions are lively. Faculty members are found participating in society functions with enthusiasm equal to that of the members themselves. The group seeks to provide students with the means to inquire into and discuss current topics in the field of physics.

PHYSICS SOCIETY

CIVIL ENGINEERING CLUB

This Club, proud of its affiliation with the national American Society of Civil Engineers, fosters in the civil engineering student, through guest speakers, films and slides, a professional responsibility in his chosen field. It makes the student aware of the various branches in civil engineering and the challenges and satisfactions that may be derived from each. The future civil engineer will design, construct, operate, and manage the facilities that epitomize our modern civilization.

SANCTUARY SOCIETY

The Sanctuary Society concerns itself with the religious functions which are so much a part of our campus life. These young men bring to the altar an enthusiasm and dedication which is not only indicative of interest but shows their willingness to place themselves in the service of Church and College. Whether serving Daily Mass in the Chapel or assisting a Pontificating Cardinal, they represent each student on the Altar of God.

SODALITY

The Collegiate Sodality of Our Lady, Mother of Good Counsel, is an organization which attempts to promote Christian action through the personal sanctification of its members. The Sodality, affiliated with the Prima Primaria Sodality in Rome, is one of the oldest organizations for Catholic laymen. Under the direction of its moderator, Father Burt, the organization has endeavored to participate in apostolate works which are in accordance with its nature and purpose.

Father Thomas Walsh, capable director and moderator of the Choral Society, has succeeded in creating a harmony of note, tone and time through long hours of practice. Here, Father Walsh directs a concert.

The artistic perfection demanded for a polished performance requires rehearsing. The members of the Choral group find that such work can be more pleasure than chore.

CHORAL SOCIETY

One of our best good will emissaries, the Merrimack College Choral Society is primarily an organization formed for the enjoyment of those who are to some degree vocally talented. The Society is the oldest cultural organization on campus. It offers the student opportunity for artistic expression and development in choral singing. Its repertoire includes music in the popular, folk, semi-classical, modern and traditional classical forms. The Christmas season finds the Choral group singing carols throughout the Merrimack Valley. Following the Spring Concert on Campus, the singing students bring the name of Merrimack College on a tour, stopping at New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and Albany.

Parent body of all school activities, the Student Council has achieved even more prestige and influence this year. The fifteen members assemble weekly to discuss policy and long term research problems such as the new Orientation procedures. Serving as an instrument for student body opinion, the Council also succeeds in alleviating many of the administrative burdens of the college.

STUDENT COUNCIL

With an eye on the future of the college, the Student Council seeks to broaden the scope of student interests. The Council members work together as a liaison between the Administration and the student body and have made positive steps toward strengthening its relations with the Administration in order to serve the students it represents more effectively.

Assisting Chairman William Condon in performing the administrative duties of the Student Council are Anne Marie Monahan, Vice-Chairwoman; Nancy Galland, Secretary; and Reo Hamel, Treasurer.

Now is the tyme for all gud men to kome to the aid of their . . . Student Council Representative, Linda Ruggieri.

"All right ladies, what am I offered for this fine specimen of the human male? (a student council member, "to boot"). True, he's a little thin, but some wholesome Merrimack food should do the trick!"

Phi Kappa Theta, a national Catholic social fraternity, was founded in 1889 and now has over sixty active chapters in colleges and universities throughout the United States and Canada. Its objectives include the fostering of a strict sense of Christian morality and an appreciation of the values of scholastic achievement. Here on the Merrimack campus, Phi Kappa Theta is very active in religious, academic, and athletic activities. Off campus, Phi Kappa Theta is also very active, and its services to the surrounding communities are appreciated. The men of Phi Kappa Theta are proud to count among their brothers the late President John F. Kennedy.

Phi Kappa Theta

The success or failure of having the proper fraternity image is often measured by the quality of leadership that its officers display. Phi Kaps at Merrimack are justly proud of their elected officers.

Sigma Beta Kappa, Merrimack's oldest national social fraternity, is dedicated to the development of true Christian gentlemen. With a threefold purpose of social, service, and spiritual, Sigma Beta Kappa serves the college as the official welcoming committee and as host for many of Merrimack's social events. Biannually, Sigma Beta Kappa offers all men of Merrimack an opportunity to inquire into and participate in a judiciously planned pledge period designed to "instill a strong sense of Christian morality founded on Catholic principles and heritages." The oath of allegiance is an oath for life.

Sigma Beta Kappa

Sigma Beta Kappa continues its fine tradition of providing leaders. Leaders who not only work hard for the fraternity, but who are found organizing and planning other college activities.

Dedication and the willingness to work, these typify the qualities of the On Stagers. As in other endeavors of this kind, personal satisfaction and a sense of accomplishment are high among the rewards.

ON STAGERS

Continuing their tradition of high standards of play selection and production, the On Stagers presented "Twelfth Night" in the spring of 1964 and "Major Barbara" in the fall. Dedicated On Stagers qualify for Alpha Psi Omega, intercollegiate fraternity.

The group shown are only part of the many On Stagers who have earned for themselves the reputation of being the busiest club on campus.

Toby Beleh (Paul Hart) and Fabian (Michael Gordon) applaud the duel in Twelfth Night between Sir Andrew Aguecheek (Pat Freni) and Viola while the Captain (Ivan Olson) interferes.

With brandished sword, Richard Bernier as the Duke, threatens Viola (Claudia Gordon) as Olivia (Yvonne LaChapelle) intercedes during the climax of Twelfth Night.

"Wot prawce selvytion nah?" mutters the cynical Bill Walker as Major Baines (Mary Trask) accepts a large donation from armsmaker Andrew Undershaft and the whiskey manufacturer Sir Horace Bodger.

"It is not for myself alone. I want the power for the world," says the Greek scholar Adolphus Cousins as he tells Major Barbara he will accept her father's diabolical offer.

Lady Britomart (Carla Adams) informs her dumbfounded son Stephen (John Lambert) that their armsmaker father will leave the business only to a foundling.

Major Barbara (Nora McCarville) and Jennie Hill (Sloane Crawford) try to save Bill Walker (George Pelham) as Adolphus Cousins (Paul Hart) and Andrew Undershaft (Pat Freni) watch sardonically while Snobby Price (Michael Foley) stands by.

"Killing. Is that the remedy for everything?" Barbara cries out agonizedly to her father, Andrew Undershaft, the munitions maker, during a climactic scene in Shaw's "Major Barbara," the fall production of the On Stagers.

Contrasting moods dominated the Salvation Army scene in "Major Barbara" when Rummy Mitchens (Chris Wolfe) and the Salvation Army Lassie (Sloane Crawford) prayed over the unresponsive Peter Shirley (Paul Reiger).

The Young Democrats is an organization dedicated to stimulate in the Merrimack student an active interest in governmental affairs and to foster and instill in the student the ideals and principles of the Democratic Party. This election year, with its wide diversificaton in party platforms has seen enthusiastic participation among the club members in their support for their presidential candidate.

DEMOCRATS

REPUBLICANS

"Fighting for the Right is the greatest sport the world affords." The Young Republicans highly agree with Theodore Roosevelt and clasp his statement staunchly to themselves as the motto of their organization. A firm belief in the two-party system as a means of preserving individual freedom within our great nation is the basis for the club's formation.

RIDING CLUB

Here's an enjoyable way to stay physically fit . . . the Riding Club. Lessons in English horsemanship and crisp clear weather join together, at the Andover Riding Academy, center of activity for the Club, to stimulate students sluggish from the long hours of studying. Some of the members take advantage of the lessons, while all enjoy the pleasure of the trail ride.

SKI-MERS

Ambitious and energetic, the Ski-Mers dedicate themselves to both the pleasure and the study of the art of skiing. Open to amateurs and advanced skiiers alike, it gives those interested an opportunity to practice their skills during frequent sessions at Boston Hill and to enjoy the snow-capped slopes of New England through a number of ski trips planned during the season.

RADIO STATION WVMM

WVMM, Voice of Merrimack College, organized in the fall of 1963, has already become a potential force in college life. An educational station, its programs range from pops to the classics and include student discussions and talks by speakers on campus. This year it became a full member of the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System. Also this year the station took over mealtime announcements and background music at meals.

MERRIMACK MONITORS

Organized two years ago, the Merrimack Monitors have become the cohesive force behind WVMM, the college radio station. At its meetings ideas about programming and ways of improving the radio station are discussed. One project of the club this year was to organize a chapter of Iota Beta Sigma intercollegiate radio fraternity on campus. It is from the Monitors that the station personnel is selected.

PACE SOCIETY

"Let's go" is the familiar cry heard from our ambitious leader, Larry Smialek, as we are found climbing . . . pedaling . . . canoeing . . . rowing . . . swimming . . . skating . . . or touring. Willing to give any sporting adventure a try, we are always exploring new and exciting places. You can't help but keep physically fit when you are active in the P.A.C.E. Club.

As one of the newer clubs on campus, the Psychology Club has aroused considerable interest among the student body. The club attempts to promote further interest in Psychology as a career, and in the Behavioral Sciences in general.

Rushing by—each succeeding event more enjoyable — mixers, Interludes, Winter Weekends, Proms — each more important than the last—the early, apparently meaningless events, now placed next to the galas, seem just as significant now — they all rush by, yet something remains — the laugh, the joy, the memory.

The annual Junior-Senior Dinner-Dance was held this year at the Kings Grant Motor Inn in Danvers. To the lilting strains of the Commodores, couples waltzed and dined through the memorable evening 'til the small hours of the morning.

Time out for a congenial chat with a few members of the faculty who attended the dance. But whether or not Father Burt and Father McGuidigan will join the dancers remains to be seen!

With a few minutes to spare between courses, lively conversation kept this table busy. The Kings Grant Inn provided all with an excellent repast at 12:00 midnight —while the band played on!

JUNIOR SENIOR

The Autumn Interlude held this year at the Hillview Country Club in North Reading, was an enjoyable night for all, especially Ann Neelon who will reign as Miss Merrimack for this year. Included in her devastating court are "Tina" Topper, Sue Krystiniak, Marjorie Craycroft, and Gloria Lucceri, each as lovely as the others!

Autumn Interlude

Oh, keep the trophy—I'll take the hairdo!

"Oh Maureen, you shouldn't have!" But lovely Ann Neelon accepts the trophy signifying the beginning of her reign as Miss Merrimack from Maureen Brennan, outgoing queen. Ann will serve as campus hostess for visitors, among other duties — and she is a gracious queen we all can be proud of!

Heartbeats quicken, hands perspire, each of the twelve candidates thinks over and over: "Have I been chosen? I hope we're dancing allright. Everyone's watching us! I wish it were all over!" Until finally the "ordeal" is completed.

"Watch it, baby, they're trying to snap us again!" "And why not, Jim?" Here's just a few of the many handsome couples who attended our fall semi-formal. On a Cinderella evening such as this, everyone dons their "glad rags"—an absolute holiday for nearby photographers!

Winter Weekend

Ready to weather the cold and snow of any slope, pretty Kathy Bermel models one of the many beautiful outfits worn in the fashion show this year.

All eyes are on the candidates for the Winter Weekend Queen, but somehow, this seems to be a job for the men.

The Winter Weekend Committee and our concert entertainers, Joe and Eddie, get together backstage during the intermission of their performance which was the highlight of the weekend.

One of the more relaxing of the weeks events, the semi-formal dance with its soft music and quiet atmosphere was just the beginning of the endless activity which was to follow.

Regina Klimas, our charming and pretty queen, sits regally between Sue Krystyniak and Kathy Fox who attractively represent her court.

Joe and Eddie entertained us with a wonderful variety of songs and their sometimes dry, always enjoyable humor.

Winter Wonderland

With something for everyone, the Weekend program included a basketball game between Merrimack and Lowell State. The Warriors were victorious, led by Frank Morris, shown here driving for two points.

Junior Week

. . . And let me play among the stars.

A memorable moment comes to rest as the royal couple pauses . . . Sandy, escorted by a proud Michael, reigned the evening as queen of a climactic Junior Prom . . . and then passes on.

Beneath a jeweled sun, couples are positioned on the vast dance floor of the Louis XIV Ballroom at the Somerset Hotel. Mirrored walls capture reflections of an evening that long will be remembered.

The leading couples from the grand march step to the foreground. Ladies and gentlemen exhibit the formality of dress, as well as the formality of occasion.

The horn is plenty good, and so too Bob Bachelder et compagnie, as proven by their music that reaped the favor of all attending.

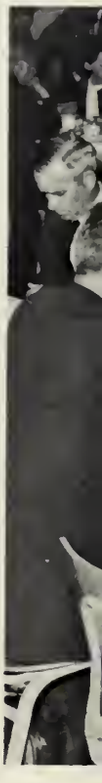
THIS IS THE WEEK THAT WAS



Junior week—almost a week's vacation! Time out for revisiting our childhood —coeds day, we dressed as storybook characters. Our concert with the invited Brandywine Singers. Ring blessing—the ring of our college is sanctfied. Parents' banquet—we share with our parents the joy of a week designed especially for us. The culmination of our "week that was"—the Junior Prom —many fond memories.

The Ring Blessing ceremony is the religious focal point of Junior Week and a tradition at Merrimack. For us, the ring is more than a mere souvenir of our collegiate days; it has been sanctified, giving it a deeper significance.

Mystery meat again: No! Parents rate!! The Junior Banquet was one to be remembered and the fitting end to a perfect seven day week which commemorated a fantastic junior year.

The Monkey—latest dance craze—also the best way to get off campus. And Tom is doing a great job of both. Sport's Day also included such demanding skills as egg-throwing, tandem bicycle racing, pie eating, and chariot racing among the fraternities.

RELIGIOUS

An island — lifted from the current and the eddies of self-absorption to become a haven where I momentarily escape the tyranny of time—an island — yet an integral part of the contour of life — Faith, Communion, Peace — sufficing to make life coherent.

Under the very capable guidance of Reverend John J. Coffey, O.S.A., inspiring conferences were given to the commuting students and the resident students during the morning and afternoon.

Fall Retreat

At the commencement of each fall semester, Merrimack students are provided with a Day of Recollection—a day in which we turn once again to a new scholastic year, asking God's help for its success.

Father Burt—a familiar face! Perhaps he is engaged in preparing a sermon for Thursday's night prayers which have been an enlightenment to all of us.

"And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes and death shall be no more, nor mourning, nor crying, nor sorrow shall be any more."

Apocalypse
ch. 21 ve. 4

Daily Devotions

Father Burt and Father Wesson are always ready to lend a helping hand to the needs of the students. The doors of their offices in Tagastan Hall are always open. . . .

The Tabernacle containing the Blessed Sacrament, attracts our attention immediately. It is the center of our lives, around which all things should revolve.

Our church is rapidly changing with the times, and the Mass facing the people is the most recent innovation. Students find this additional participation bringing them closer to the deepest meaning of the Eucharistic Sacrifice.

The Madonna and the Infant add a touch of beauty to the campus and inspire us to cast our eyes upward in a moment of appreciation and thanksgiving.

ATHLETICS

Latent with energy, water beckons man to use it fruitfully. The human body in a manner similar to water has potential. It is our choice to tap the source or leave it alone. Athletics provide the outlet, the opportunity for us to develop our bodies.

Leo Hogan and Jack Erickson show the fierce determination which enabled Merrimack to defeat a favored C.W. Post squad.

BASKETBALL

Referee prepares to give Howie Smith ten lashes for a charging foul.

Always a great competitor, Frank Morris attempts to block shot.

The 1964-65 season was again a very successful one for the Warriors. Ably coached by William LaRochelle and led on the court by Co-captains Howie Smith and Jack Erickson, an improved Warrior quintet played aggressive ball throughout the grueling season. Bolstered by the promotion of several sophomores to varsity status they played a top notch schedule. From the beginning of the season with the Babson Invitational Tournament to the last game with Lowell State they played their best and gave the school and student body a team of which they could well be proud.

. . . a few pointers

The 1964-65 season saw the star of Merrimack's basketball team rise ever higher in the sports world. The team, a young one, shows great promise for coming years. Basketball is serving Merrimack in many ways. The most obvious of these of course is that it serves as a means of bolstering school spirit as well as providing an outlet for the more athletically inclined students; but it does more than this. It is our number one public relations media. Essential to any school is the esteem in which it is held by the people of the local area. By attending our games, and witnessing the spirit of the students and the sense of fair play of our team, these people cannot help but have a favorable impression of our school.

In opposition to the position that basketball is not a contact sport, we see here that brawn is often needed to retain the ball.

Displaying poetry in motion Chuck Menary takes one of his typically graceful jump shots.

Co-captain Jack Erickson breaks to the top of the key and pops in a jump shot for two points.

Agile Ron Ruais drives through the key for two points.

Frank Morris displays signs of anguish as Leo Hogan tickles his adam's apple.

Frank Morris valiantly makes last ditch effort to stop opponent from adding to the score board, as Jack Erickson surges in to lend a hand.

Jack Erickson battles for a rebound as Frank Morris and Leo Hogan converge on the play.

. . . overtime pays off

Sensing the presence of the photographer, Leo Hogan positions the players for the picture.

Always ready to provide the needed spark of spirit, Maureen and the girls get set for another boisterous cheer.

Preparing to send his quintet into action, Coach La Rochelle gives some last minute instructions.

HOCKEY

Hockey, a relative newcomer to Merrimack, has never the less generated a tremendous amount of enthusiasm among the student body. This year's squad has played to standing room only crowds at Frost Arena. The roughest of all indoor sports, hockey requires a well disciplined body as well as a great deal of determination. The fans, however, require a quick mind in order to follow this fast exciting game. Zenith of the year's schedule is the annual scramble for the penalty box at the Providence Arena.

This was the year of change for the Merrimack sextet. For the first time the Warrior skaters played and practiced in a completely enclosed rink. Frost Arena. The major change however, came in a vastly more important area: coaching. New coach Ronald Ryan. coming to us after two years of coaching the University of Pennsylvania. is our first full time hockey coach.

The all time N.C.A.A. scoring record holder, coach Ryan has brought new lift to an already popular sport. In only one season under his tutelage the team has shown vast improvement. Led by Captain Louis Thibeault, the team is now considered to be one of the rising powers in Eastern hockey.

Providence forward breaks through Merrimack's defense and charges on toward the goal. Coming out of the crease to cut down the angle of the shot is Don Smith.

Hustling as always, sparkplug Russ Harnish eludes defensemen as he brings the puck out of the Merrimack zone and surges toward the net intent upon flashing the red light.

Junior goalie Don Smith sprawls on the ice to make a spectacular save on a close in-shot. Defensemen rush to control puck as a Providence forward tries for the rebound.

Blazing down the ice forward Dave Pollard leads the team on an offensive rush. A starting forward Dave is also Merrimack's leading scorer. Only a sophomore he shows great potential as do several other newcomers to the team.

Defensemen as any goalie will admit play a major role in keeping the puck out of the net, but they also can be counted on to do their share on offense. John Walker lets go one of his slap shots.

a puckish spirit prevails

As a pitcher is ninety percent of a baseball team so in hockey the goalie has the same lofty importance. Dropping to his knees Warrior goalie Don Smith proves his worth.

Hey fella. do you have the puck? No, I don't have the puck, I thought you had it. No, I don't have it. I thought you had it. No, I don't . . .

Captain Louis Thibeault takes a centering pass and leads the team into opposition territory as Merrimack put on offensive rush.

HOCKEY

Judging from the stance of the goalie this could have been the start of one of the free for alls against Providence College.

Always a two way threat "Monk" McCarthy shows his defensive ability in breaking up an offensive rush.

Sliding across the crease, goalie Don Smith smothers the puck.

Dave Malaison breaks through defensemen only to have the goalie turn aside the shot. Always a hustler he moves in for the rebound.

"Monk" McCarthy displays one of the many ways to remove an opponents forward from in front of the net.

TENNIS

Last year was a building season for the Warrior netmen. Sporting a mediocre 5-7 record they played with mostly newcomers to the squad. Losing only two players via graduation they have five lettermen returning from last year's team. Around this nucleus Coach Armand Goslin will have a strong team on the courts with which to represent Merrimack not only next season but also in future years.

Junior John Lavangie ranges backward to slam a forehand return. Playing in his first year of competition for Merrimack, John is typical of the high caliber of player on the tennis squad.

Herb Darcy in making a fine return, exhibits the dedication to purpose which was characteristic of the tennis team's play throughout the long grueling, tedious, and tumultuous season.

An outgrowth of the popular ski-mers, Merrimack's ski team has been very successful since it made its first appearance. Supported by a good deal of their own money the team is a credit to those unselfish students who put Merrimack College before themselves.

SKI TEAM

Practicing under the watchful eye of coach Bob Dunn, the Merrimack ski team gets set for another successful season. Handicapped by a lack of students with skiing ability the team practices long hours to make up for what they lack in numbers.

Skill, desire, and intestinal fortitude are the basic essentials needed to produce a good skier. The members of our team, under the guidance of Father Kamide, has displayed such qualities.

Louis Caron, one of the outstanding members of Merrimack's Ski team, displays fine form as he pulls off an exciting maneuver at Boston Hill.

SAILING

Only officially recognized for two seasons, Merrimack's sailing team has enjoyed unprecedented success. Coached by George Cooper and skippered by John Malia, Bob Danenburg and Pam Newton, the sailors posted a fine record last season. Unique in that they have never had a losing season, the team placed first and second the New England Associate Championship Meet, and won the Friis Trophy in the Spring of 1964.

Two members of Merrimack's sailing team get set to hoist sail for the start of another tough meet.

Against the beautiful background of the Mystic Lakes, two entries from Merrimack's sailing team begin a very pleasant but also grueling trip around the course.

Bob Minor looks down field for a receiver, while using his superb rollout ability to ward off defender.

Buck Tingley, mainstay of the P.K.T. offense, shows his form in a long touchdown run against the fighting Irish.

Displaying the main reason for their success, the Fighting Irish line of Jack McMahon, Bob Eramian, and Jim Wright lead way for quarterback Leo Majeski.

Surprise of the football season, the Kids showed an unexpected offensive punch. Quarterback Paul Sandor looks down field for his receivers.

INTRAMURALS

Although this picture looks like it was taken at a football game, it was really taken at a practice session for students who wish to cut into the lunch line.

Football

Starting off the year's athletic activity is the Intramural Football season. The game is played under the two-hand tag system and as the players will testify, it is a good deal tougher than it actually looks. Spectators are treated to excellent hard nosed football, enriched by the tremendous rivalry that such competition generates.

End Pete Richards narrowly misses one of Bob Minor's usually accurate passes.

One of the more colorful players of our Intramural League is Larry Sullivan, who is about to block Buck Tingley, Frank Romano, the car in the background, or anything else in his way.

Necessary in any type of athletic contest is the referee. Here John Adiletti checks out the action. Note the penalty flag in his back pocket. It stayed there all season.

This marks the beginning of another successful intramural basketball season. Games may be low scoring, but they never lack spirited play.

Please, somebody write a letter to the editor of the Warrior, we need girls at these modern dance classes.

Basketball

Sensational over the shoulder catch spoiled by intruding hands. It can truly be said that everyone gets into the act.

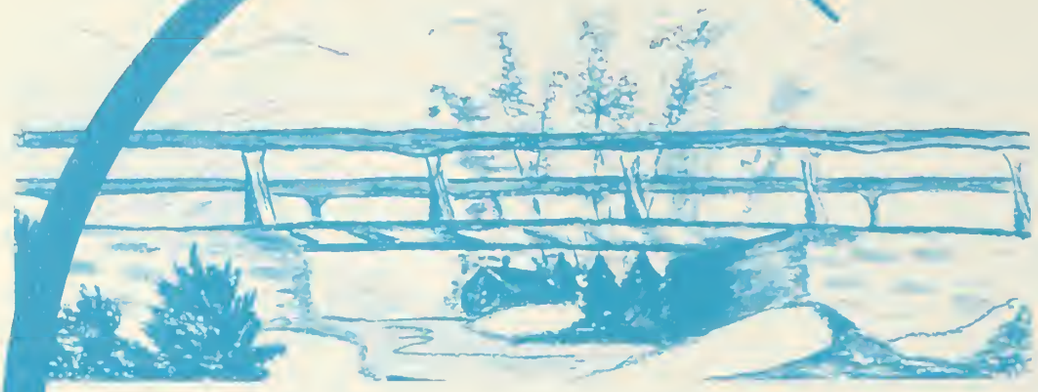
Pressed by an onrushing lineman, an intramural hoopster makes a sensational last minute shot.

John LeVangie of P.K.T. lets fly with one of his patented jump shots from the key as the "Flying Arab," Ron Ferris, moves in for the possible rebound. The action took place in the annual P.K.T.-S.B.K. classic in which the Kaps beat the Sigmas 77-44.

Mike "the shot" Kavanagh puts in two points to lead the Amazing Omegas to victory over the Brontos.

Ron Ferris (P.K.T.) and Peter Richards (S.B.K.) battle for the tap as John Houlihan casually observes.

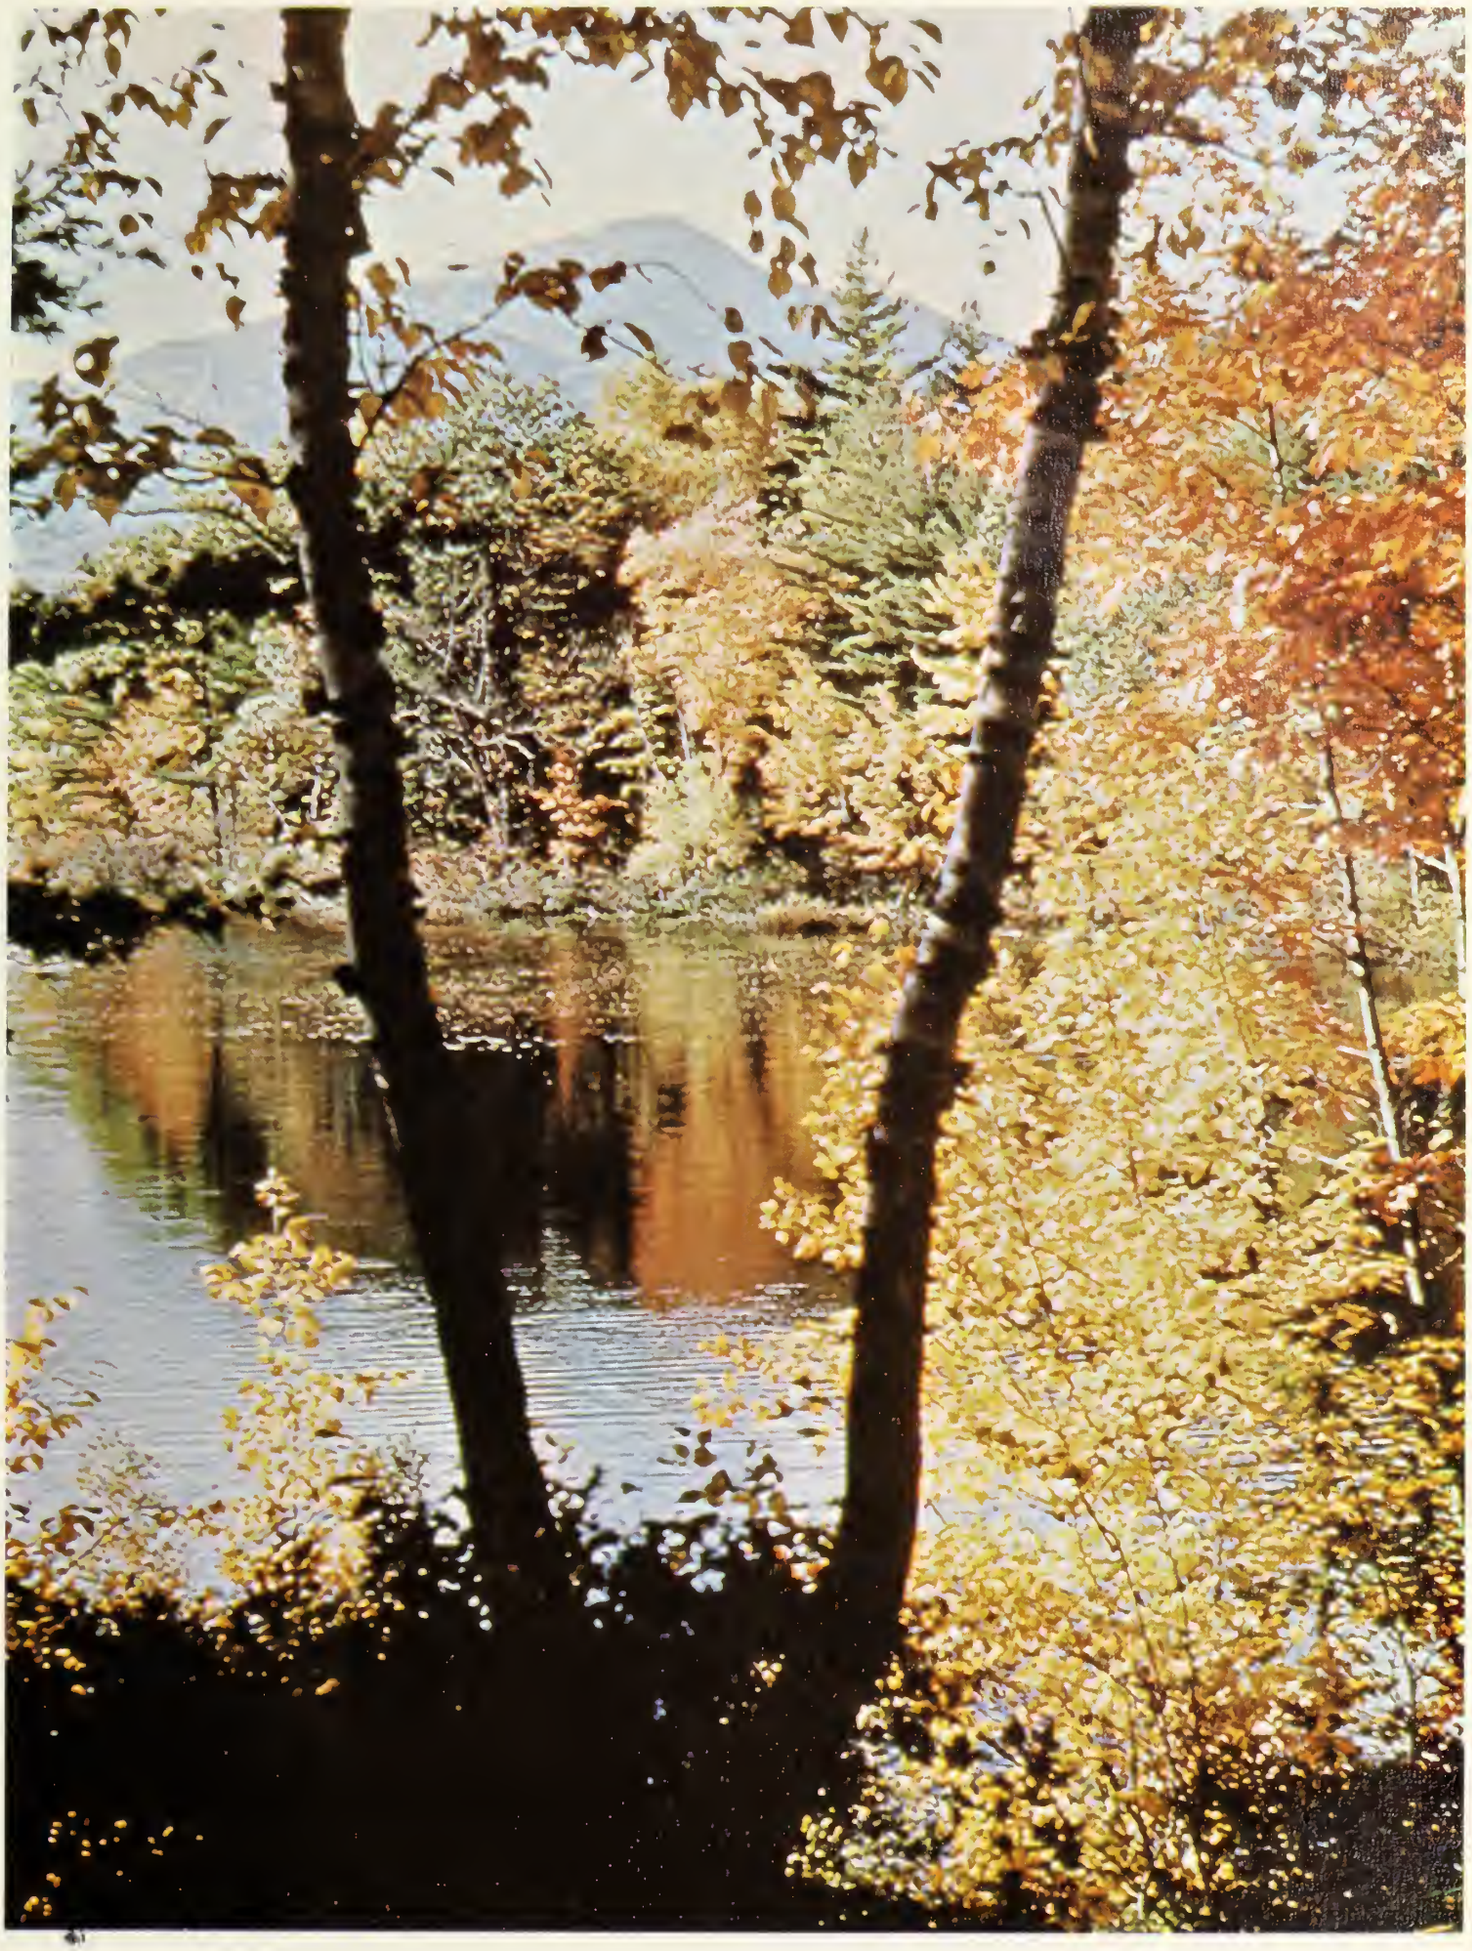
The P.K.T.-S.B.K. game has become the highlight of Merrimack's Intramural Basketball program. The determination and anxiety reflected in this picture show how important "The Game" is to all those involved.



We are swept along and others become . . .

heirs of the Light of Knowledge. The torch that came into our hands enters yours . . . to be brightened or dimmed . . . and passed on again. Whenever we meet again, we will speak of the place above the valley —the hill where the winds came wild and free across the open campus . . . and we will remember . . . remember the time we spent in our youth, smiling the sad and glorious smile of those who look behind in contentment.

GRADUATES



The class of '65 can attribute a large portion of its success to its hard working core of officers. Their diligence, perseverance, dedication and guidance has sparked the class on to many notable accomplishments. The needed qualities of leadership and understanding are admirably personified in the persons of President Bob Regan, Vice-President Howie Smith, Treasurer Ann Girardin, and Secretary Fran Haniewich.

Merrimack College is a young school which despite its youth has achieved a commendable academic reputation. As a result of its tremendous potential it is almost certain that in the very near future it will be recognized as one of the finest educational institutions in the New England area.

The Class of 1965 owes Merrimack a great deal. It has offered to us three of the most important gifts that any institution of its kind can possibly present to its members. First, we have all been offered an excellent education. Whether we have received it or not is the responsibility of the student not the institution. Second, guidance has been offered to each student which, when placed in the proper perspective, can lead both to the "real enjoyments" in life and the more complete understanding of ourselves. Finally Merrimack has given us all memories, happy and sad, with which we can relive the best years of our lives. From that first frightful day of Orientation to that last wonderful day of graduation we shall never forget what we once had and what we wish we had again. We have had something that cannot be explained properly in mere words but it is something unique which we all know we have had.

. . . and this too will be swept away

A river has its own life — each one is unique. Reaching its end, the river surrenders this quality to become only a part of the great sea.

This book has its own quality of uniqueness. Living a year at school, we experience the gamut of activities: classes, discussion groups, school retreat, Club Day, dances, Winter Weekend, Junior Week, Graduation. These have all been recorded. Just as the year comes to a close, so too this book must conclude. But, alas, now you can appreciate me, your yearbook. Return to me five or even ten years from now — I guarantee that I can refresh your memory to your hearts' content.

The 1965 Merrimackan is significantly different from its predecessors. We hope that the changes made will ultimately result in raising the artistic standards of this work and in giving the reader a more realistic view of life at our college.

Although many people contribute in the production of a yearbook, the bulk of the work falls on the shoulders of a certain few. We would like to take this opportunity to offer our sincere gratitude to the following:

Mr. Leonard DeSimone, Moderator: Thank you for always solving our insolvable problems.

Mr. John Ursprung, Jr. of the Cooke Publishing Company: Thank you for your patience and very valuable advice.

Mr. Joseph Nahill, head of Merrimack's Public Relations Office: Thank you for all your assistance which you were not obligated to give.

The 1965 Merrimackan Staff: I personally would like to thank all those people who gave so much of their time to this successful endeavor. The following deserve special praise: Dick Noonan, Joe Dolan, Carroll Spencer, Nancy Hill, Burke Mealy, Carol Morse, Linda Salce, Fred Egan, Pat Roddy, Terry Samway, Gerry Wilde, Ginny Walker, Paula Fuglesang, and Paul DeAvilla.
